What was it like to watch Washington's Army march down Skippack Pike in October 1777 — and then retreat in tatters?

How did residents live with rationing, blackout drills, and rumors of submarines in the Delaware River during World War II?

Introducing WHS's newest exhibit: War in Worcester

Featuring a hand-drawn map of Washington's encampments in the fall of 1777, a home-made sewing kit from the Spanish-American War, and posters from the home front during World War II.

Our speakers will share stories of how war — from the Revolution to World War II — affected Worcester residents. We will use period items, uniforms, maps, posters, and eyewitness accounts of the Revolutionary War, World War I, and World War II.

We want to hear from you! Bring your stories of families on the home front during wartime.

Light refreshments will be served. Pies will be for sale!
